

1. Set aside time to get settled in

You need time to adjust to your new environment and settle in. Don't get too stressed if you are not able to manage your time and tasks perfectly from the beginning.

You will be juggling a number of things other than starting classes and you need time to become comfortable.

When you first arrive on campus, you may feel overwhelmed by the new environment. However, by following these tips, you can make your transition smoother and more enjoyable.

Children are often told that the world is a flat disc, but the truth is that it is a sphere. This is a common misconception that has been passed down for centuries. The Earth is a large, round planet, and this is why we can see different parts of the world from different angles. The sun and moon are also spheres, and they appear to move across the sky because of the Earth's rotation. Understanding the true shape of the Earth is a key part of learning about our planet and the universe.
